Homework remains a controversial topic in the field of education. Proponents argue that it is crucial to reinforce classroom learning and teaching students a sense of responsibility and time management. In addition, it provides a valuable opportunity for parents to involve themselves in their children's academic progress. However, critics often point out that excessive homework leads to unnecessary stress and fatigues, particularly for younger students who already have demanding school schedules. They suggest that the time be spent on homework be better used for leisure activities or family, that is equally important for a child's holistic development. In conclusion, finding the right balance and ensuring that assignments are meaningful, other than just busy work, are the key challenges for educators today.

In recent years, there has been a remarkable increase into happiness. The researchers have come up with (61) _____ of factors which contribute to a definition of happiness.

First of all, there is, in some people, a moderate genetic predisposition to be happy, in other words, happiness (62) _____ families. And happiness seems to correlate quite strongly with the main dimensions of personalities: extroverts are generally happier, neurotics are less so.

Second, people often report good social relations (63) _____ a reason for their happiness. In particular, friends are a great source of joy, partly because of the agreeable things they do together, partly because of the way friends use positive non-verbal (64) _____ such as caressing and touching, to affirm their friendship. Marriage and similar (65) _____ relationships can also form the basis of lasting happiness.

Third, job satisfaction undoubtedly (66) _____ overall satisfaction, and vice versa - perhaps this is why some people are happy in (67) _____ jobs: it works both ways. Job satisfaction is caused not only by the essential nature of the work, but also by social interactions with co-workers. Unemployment, on the (68) _____, can be a serious cause of unhappiness.

Fourth, leisure is important because it is more under individual (69) _____ than most other causes of happiness. Activities such as playing sports and listening to music, and participating in voluntary work and social clubs of various kinds, can give great joy. This is partly because of the (70) _____ themselves, but also because of the social support of other group members – it is very strong in the case of religious groups.

Question 3. Read the passage and choose the best answers to questions below. (10 points)

According to sociologists, there are several different ways in which a person may become recognized as the leader of a social group in the United States. In the family, traditional cultural patterns confer leadership on one or both of the parents. In other cases, such as friendship groups, one or more persons may gradually emerge as leaders, although there is no formal process of selection. In larger groups, leaders are usually chosen formally through election or recruitment.

Although leaders are often thought to be people with unusual personal ability, decades of research have failed to produce consistent evidence that there is any category of “natural leaders”. It seems that there is no set of personal qualities that all leaders have in common; rather, virtually any person may be recognized as a leader if the person has qualities that meet the needs of that particular group.

Furthermore, although it is commonly supposed that social groups have a single leader, research suggests that there are typically two different leadership roles that are held by different individuals. Instrumental leadership is leadership that emphasizes the completion of tasks by a social group. Group members look to instrumental leaders to “get things” done. Expressive leadership, on the other hand, is leadership that emphasizes the collective well-being of a social group’s member. Expressive leaders are less concerned with the overall goals of the group than with providing emotional support to group members and attempting to minimize tension and conflict among them. Group members expect expressive leaders to maintain stable relationships within the group and provide support to individual members.

Instrumental leaders are likely to have a rather secondary relationship to other group members. They give orders and may discipline group members who inhibit attainment of the group’s goals. Expressive leaders cultivate a more personal or primary relationship to others in the group. They offer sympathy when someone experiences difficulties or is subjected to discipline, are quick to lighten a serious moment with humor, and try to resolve issues that threaten to divide the group. As the differences in these two roles suggest, expressive leaders generally receive more personal affection from group members; instrumental leaders, if they are successful in promoting group goals, may enjoy a more distant respect.

71. The passage mentions all of the following ways by which people can become leaders EXCEPT _____.

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| A. recruitment | B. formal election process |
| C. traditional cultural patterns | D. specific leadership training |

- A. few people qualify as “natural leaders”
- B. there is no proof that “natural leaders” exist
- C. “natural leaders” are easily accepted by the members of a social group
- D. “natural leaders” share a similar set of characteristics

73. Which of the following statements about leadership can be inferred from paragraph 2?

- A. A person can best learn how to be an effective leader by studying research on leadership.
- B. Few people succeed in sharing a leadership role with another person.
- C. A person who is an effective leader of a particular group may not be an effective leader in another group.

- D. Most people desire to be leaders but can produce little evidence of their qualifications.
74. The passage indicates that instrumental leaders generally focus on _____.
 A. ensuring harmonious relationships
 B. sharing responsibility with group members
 C. identifying new leaders
 D. achieving a goal
75. The word collective in the third paragraph is CLOSEST in meaning to _____.
